Profile

Orlando is a Principal and Oxera's Chief Information Officer, with overall responsibility for setting out and delivering the firm's technology strategy. A forward-thinking leader, he is passionate about ensuring that technology is there to support the firm's strategy and translating corporate objectives into programme deliverables and actions.

Orlando has worked across the professional services industry in programme management and change leadership roles with magic circle law firms and leading financial services companies. His particular focus is on 'line of business' systems such as finance, CRM and knowledge management that deliver demonstrable benefits to a firm. He takes a collaborative approach to building cross-functional teams and working closely with a firm's strategic suppliers. He is a key member of Oxera's Business Support leadership team.
